POLITICAL CARTOONS

The Political Cartoonist, 1984 4

Is it really true that one day all this will be mine? (Prince Charles and the succession) .. 39

Leo Britannicus (Britain's troubles are self-inflicted) 75

That's no way—let me show you (Wilson gives advice to Heath on how to deal with the Trade Unions) 111

The Miners' Strike (Miners' leader Gormley at loggerheads with Heath) 209

Target Practice (The Labour Party's main target is now the middle class) 258

U.K. 1974. (Real power rests with the work force) 279

And in the morning he was still a frog (The outcome of the election will not solve Britain's inflation problems) 361

"Welcome to the club, Harold" Harold Wilson joins a group of Prime Ministers who lead minority governments) 405

"I thought we were supposed to be playing my game!" (Europe organises its petrol supplies during the fuel shortage—America is not consulted) .. 482

$2½ Billion Loan. (Britain gains another International Loan) .. 527

Very well, then—alone (Callaghan begins re-negotiation of Common Market terms).
Spring Sowing (Wilson prepares for an early election) 661

Mayday (Demonstration of water power) 702

A lot of things have been going on under stones . . . (Wilson and Heath ignore major problems in order to gain political capital from minor corruptions) 751

Losing the Driver (Brandt resigns his chancellorship).
It has been said that Coggan is a caretaker. The same was said of Pope John. (Coggan is announced as Archbishop of Canterbury designate).
The Ultimate Pill (India explodes a nuclear device) 883
"For Heaven's sake, cut it off, and let's enjoy ourselves." (The British people's frustration over the unending Ulster problem) 927
